Translation

Our fully qualified translators boast many years' experience and we choose specialists who are not only familiar with the language you require but also the discipline in which you work. They are able to capture the trickiest of technical details or subtle marketing word play in the language of your choice, ensuring your promotional materials are translated accurately and sound totally natural to a native audience.

Interpreting services

Linguamax provides quality interpreting services for a range of situations including business meetings, conferences, court proceedings, telephone conversations and trade fairs. Interpreting requires the very highest skills, coupled with sensitivity and a sense of diplomacy. Linguamax interpreters translate not just the spoken word but also the differences in cultures, expressions and business etiquette that inevitably come with working internationally and within specific disciplines.

Typesetting and design

Translated copy rarely matches the length of the original. If your translation is intended for presentation materials, a linguistically competent typesetter and / or designer will guarantee appropriate paragraph and page breaks, can edit copy to fit the space available and can help to maintain the visual impact of the original design.

Voiceovers

Whatever your specific requirement, the quality of the spoken language is paramount. We ensure that the voice-over artists we supply will speak clearly, with the appropriate accent, and in the appropriate dialect.

Subtitling

For successful subtitling, literal translations need to be adapted to ensure that the final result meets length and reading speed requirements and retain the relevance and meaning of the original. A strong command of grammar and punctuation are also essential to maintain meaning between frames. In addition to high level communication skills our subtitlers are proficient in the software required.
